- 10. Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow:

I was shocked to see some villagers cutting a green and lively tree that stood on the corner of the children's park. Perhaps the ignorant villagers do not comprehend the quantum of the harm they have caused to the environment. A further research into the matter by the NGO Sabujpatra have revealed that in the year 2007, 1500 trees had been cut in the village of Haldipur, West Bengal to set up 5 industrial areas and 14 human settlements. The numbers increased to 1700 trees in 2008. In that year, the number of industries established had been 3 and human settlements have been numbered at 9. In the year 2009, 2000 trees have bee cut down to establish only 7 industries and establish 11 human settlements.

This is definitely a sad state of affairs and calls for immediate action. Awareness for planting more trees and their preservation has to be created among the masses. Let each one of us plant a tree every year and look after it. People should be made to realize the vital role of trees in maintaining the ecological balance. They are little laboratories that absorb carbon dioxide and release oxygen that is life for us. We inhale oxygen and exhale carbon dioxide. With the process of photo synthesis, the trees decompose it into carbon and oxygen. Thus trees are our best friends.

Trees perform some other functions as well. They bind the soil together and prevent soil erosion. The forests help to bring rainfall to us. In the ear of global warming trees perform a great service to humanity. With rising temperatures and increasing population, trees are the only boon of nature left to us to combat the poisonous gases that threaten our very existence. So if we want to lead happy and prosperous lives, we must conserve trees and forests. They will help us in maintaining the ecological balance and proper conservation of trees will check the deterioration of the environment.

There has been an upward swing almost every year in colonization, industrialization and also deforestation. In the name of progress and material prosperity man has revealed his total disregard for the surrounding environment and mercilessly destroyed the trees. This process needs to be reversed immediately and with utmost urgency.

- a) What are the ill effects of deforestation?

 UNAWARE, FIGHT, BLESSING.
